

Comprehensive modernization in agriculture, industry and services should be accompanied by increased concern with environmental protection in each farm and factory, because environment preservation is no longer affluence or a luxury but has become a necessity for protecting the people’s health and enabling it to achieve maximum benefit its natural resources.

Excerpt from the President’s speech before the People’s and Shoura Councils during the opening of the Parliamentary Session in November 2001.